FIFA is the best-selling football video game series of all-time. FIFA 20 is the biggest game of the year, with a few of the biggest innovations in the series yet to come. As always, our biggest innovation is you. One of our key areas of focus for FIFA 20 was the introduction of "HyperMotion Technology," an all-new animation engine designed to allow us to finally bring real-life movement to our in-game players, along with other subtle but real-life movements. FIFA 20 is the biggest game of the year, introducing new features such as the all-new "Tactical Free Kicks" scenario, where you can convert a penalty situation and change how the teams enter the match. Another innovation is the return of the "penalty system," where players take penalties with a conversion rate based on their current form. No two footballers are the same - here is a closer look at what they really do when they're kicking the ball: Running and Finishing • Players running forward/back with the ball • Players are faster and more agile than they previously were. • Players start receiving the ball from other players • Players have a higher agility as they can turn in tighter spaces. • Players' dribbling speed is slower, but they are able to switch to a new technique - the over the ball. • Players are more agile in
